Water District Partners with Local Schools

Students Receive the Benefits

Rancho Cucamonga, CA (MARCH 9, 2011) –The Cucamonga Valley Water District (CVWD) recently donated 25 retired computers, printers, and network equipment to the Cucamonga and Etiwanda School Districts. This program was made available through a brokered agreement established in 2009 with the five school districts in the CVWD service area.

“The agreement allows CVWD to donate the equipment for use in classrooms and campus offices, thereby extending the equipment’s useful life” stated Jay Trunnell, CVWD’s Information Technology Officer. Prior to the agreement CVWD would scrap it’s used electronic equipment.

In most cases this equipment was no longer serviceable for our needs as critical infrastructure, but the equipment can still serve a valuable role in a less demanding setting. In 2009, CVWD donated over 100 pieces of retired computer and network equipment to the five school districts.

“We are pleased that our staff has developed a creative way to give back to schools in our community”, stated Kathleen J. Tiegs, CVWD Board President. The District has partnered in the past with school districts in our service area and has an ongoing educational program to teach students about conservation and the environment.
